INTERPLAY, the group of young artists who specialise in inflatable structures for children and adults, are bringing two events to Hyndburn this year.

"GROUND TO AIR: SPACE STATION" is especially for children, who are invited to climb on, bounce on, and play with the structures. The Space Station itself is a large inflated maze into which children can climb and explore a new world of shape and colour. The structures are very safe and children need not be accompanied by an adult.

"MATRIX" is a colour/light/sound environment into which the public enter. A large inflated building full of pillars, light and music are used inside to create a new world. People will be admitted in groups of 40 at $\frac{1}{2}$ hourly intervals. Children must be accompanied by a responsible adult.
