Brierfield Arts & Cultural Project

Brierfield

Arts & Cultural Project

The Arts and Cultural project based in Brierfield is now one year old! It has initiated a number of arts projects and events and made many contacts. The project is achieving it's aim to involving people with the arts.

Events and projects taking place over the next few months include:

Brierfield Millennium Peace Garden

The Arts and Cultural project has been working in partnership supporting a group of young Asian men from the Brierfield Youth Centre in creating a Peace Garden in the centre of Brierfield.

Initiated by youth workers in 1998 after tensions between rival groups of young men in the town boiled over, the Peace Garden was completed in April 2001.

Working with artist Paul Hartley the group, from Brierfield Youth Centre, designed and made mosaic panels for the floor and painted a mural. Sculptor Clare Bigger worked to their design to create the and sculpture that now sits in the garden.

If you live in the area do go and visit the garden. It promotes the theme of peace for the whole community.

The Millennium Peace Garden was made possible by financial support from The Prince's Trust, the Millennium Festival Awards for All, the Co-operative Partnerships, Lancashire County Council Arts Unit, Groundwork East Lancashire, the Community Action Network and an anonymous donor. The Mission for Peace Group would like to thank them all for their support.

Let's celebrate

In partnership with East Lancashire Asian Arts Forum and local community organisations, we are delighted to announce the launch of a major programme of creative arts activity in East Lancashire's Asian communities. It's called Let's Celebrate, and will run for three years.

Lets Celebrate aims to build outdoor community events as celebrations of local identity, providing support both for local groups organising events in Accrington, Brierfield and Nelson, and groups who want to introduce a Mela in other East Lancashire towns.

The heart of the programme is the creative arts work that feeds in to these events. Local people, young and old, will have opportunities to develop their talents in areas that interest them, such as float-building, banner making, music-making, performance skills and video-making. Our programme will be shaped by your needs. There will be training in event management. If you would like to help run a Mela, develop your organisational skills and gain a qualification, now is your chance!

We are currently recruiting a coordinator for the project.

So in the meantime, for information or to register your name, ring Nick at MPA on 01282 421986.

community projects

graffiti art with phluid

Burnley based artist Mark Cameron is working on a series of graffiti projects in the Hyndburn and Burnley areas.

These projects tackle vandalism head-on, by engaging young participants in creating outdoor artwork that says something about their lives and local environment. In decorating places that are attacked by vandals we hope to lift the face of some of the darkest areas of East Lancashire.

Participants learn different techniques using a specifically created interactive computer programme. The final design is sprayed onto a wall or other public site.

All ages are welcome. If you would like to take part or assist, contact Mark Cameron on 07890 493204, or Nick at MPA on 01282 421986.

haslingden trade marks community literature in rossendale

Live at the Trades will shortly start a new series of monthly events with guest writers at the Trades Club.

mid pennine gallery

off the record: black and blue philip jeck until 26 may

Philip Jeck's work stands at the forefront in the field of sound art. Since the 1980s, Jeck's work has revolved around record players. His installations and performances have been included in many high profile festivals and exhibitions.

'Off the Record' is a continuous project for a fluctuating number of record players, adjusted to suit the space it inhabits. For the Mid Pennine Gallery, Philip Jeck has given the installation a blues slant in celebration of Burnley Blues Festival.

Over sixty record players, painted black and blue, are operated by timers and play a doctored collection of blues and blues related records: a must-see for both music and art enthusiasts.

chiaroscuro: caroline broadhead 2 june - 14 july

Chiaroscuro: the treatment of light and shade in a painting, drawing etc., so as to produce the illusion of depth. (Collins English Dictionary)

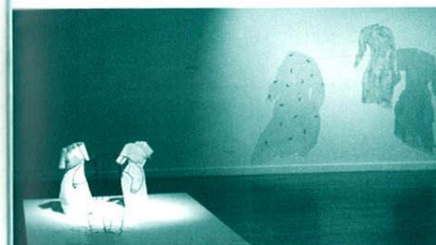

Caroline Broadhead is one of Britain's leading contemporary artists to have evolved a vocabulary out of clothing. Through investigating objects associated with the body, Broadhead has developed a visual discourse around ideas of the layers between self/other, inside/outside, material/immaterial. 'Chiaroscuro' is Broadhead's first solo exhibition in the North West. The show combines existing work with new pieces designed specifically for the Mid Pennine Gallery.

I propose to work with light and shade, continuing and developing ideas that I have been working on over the last few years. Using the garment and its shadow, there is an area of expectation, illusion and confusion that I will explore.

Born in Leeds and living and working in London, Broadhead's objects and installations have been exhibited internationally and at UK venues including Angel Row, the Hayward Gallery, Ikon and Oriel Mostyn.

'Chiaroscuro' has a fully illustrated catalogue, launched by Mid Pennine Arts in association with the Barrett Marsden Gallery, London. It includes an essay by Victoria Pomery, Senior Curator at Tate Liverpool.

The publication and exhibition are supported by Middlesex University and North West Arts Board.

tehmina shah 21 july - 1 september

Tehmina Shah was born in Lahore and moved to London in the late eighties to study printmaking at the Chelsea School of Art. Shah now lives and works in London and her print-based work explores the diversity of cultural and environmental influences that have shaped her own life:

My intention is to involve the viewer in a creative process of constructing meaning. The sense of my story lies in ambiguity, in many layers, going back to early childhood fantasies and forward to many dreams and experiences as an adult.

Tehmina Shah's work has been presented at national and international level and the Croyden Clocktower, the Bluecoat Gallery, Liverpool and Cartwright Hall, Bradford. She was also represented in 'Pakistan: Another Vision', a major 50 year retrospective of painting and sculpture from Pakistan that toured Britain last year.

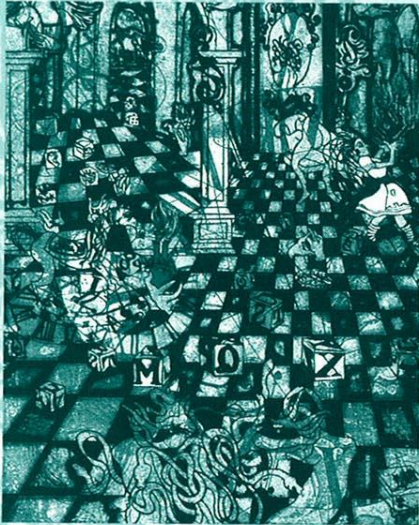

The Mid Pennine Gallery is pleased to present a unique exhibition of the artist's work reviewing an impressive career and culminating with new work, shown here for the first time.

Lightnin' boy and the boys
august - september

As Artist-in-Residence in South West Burnley for the past year, Manchester director Isabel Brotherston developed a humorous and moving documentary about the meaning of life for five disparate members of a unique Men's Group.

'Lightnin' Boy and the Boys' explores these five men's life experiences and, through them, emerges a portrait of a working class town with very little work.

The video will be shown at venues in late August culminating in a series of special screenings at the Mid Pennine Gallery from Thursday 6th September to Saturday 8 September. For further information, please call Fiona on 01282 421986.

'Lightnin' Boy and the Boys' was made by Craig Healey, Alan Mottershead, Jamie Walker, Andy Shaw and Sadat in collaboration with Isabel Brotherston. The project was organised by Mid Pennine Arts and South West Burnley Community Development Trust and supported by Year of the Artist and the Francis C. Scott Charitable Trust.

Forest of Burnley

Artist-led arts and education activities in the Forest of Burnley

The Forest of Burnley is a three-year project funded by the Millennium Commission, aiming to change the landscape of Burnley for generations to come, improve quality of life and create pride in the area. By regenerating 90 hectares of woodland and planting 500 hectares of new community woodland, the Forest will conserve wildlife habitats close to town and provide an educational and recreational resource.

From October 2001 to March 2002, there will be a series of artist-led education and community workshops on an environmental theme in the Forest of Burnley. Sculptors, crafts workers, actors, musicians and storytellers will work with local schools and community groups to encourage use of the Forest sites and help improve disabled access.

If you would like to become involved and receive information about the workshops, please contact David Smith, at Mid Pennine Arts.
